Raymond Chandler
6925 Neptune Place
La Jolla, California

SEP 7 1956

Dear Bill:

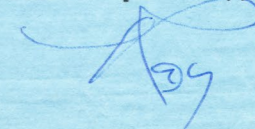

Just a short snort to thank you very very much for the inscribed copy of Ring Around Rosa. I've not got far enough into it yet to meet Jan, but am looking forward to the meeting very much.

Herewith a copy of my letter to Maule, which I thought I had sent you, and as you will see it is very much like the one I wrote to you. I know that some people are paid for quote, because my agent once called me from New York and asked me if I should like to do some and make a little easy dough. I don't say that of any particular person, but I could name two that I strongly suspect. As for Mickey Spillane, I have no opinion on any point because I never get beyond page 4 in any book of his I tried to read. The same, I might say, goes for Agatha Christie and several others of the Sacred Sisterhood of Ladylike English mystery writers.

I am feeling rather disgusted with life at the moment. One of my girl friends just got herself married to a lunkhead whom I found quite repulsive, and I'm afraid the poor girl has made a mistake. She is a Texas girl, a mystery writer, 12 years since her last divorce and I guess she is just damn well fed up with living alone.

So am I. If there is anything in life I hate it is going out to dinner alone. I could cook it, but that would be worse. Four days a week I have someone to go with, but the other three are hell. I feel like chucking the whole thing and going back to England and becoming a resident and pay their bloody taxes. The cost of living is so much lower there (except in the four five best hotels) that the difference in that might easily equal the difference in tax, or even go beyond it. Also my secretary has abandoned me for schoolteaching, a pretty sensible idea on her part, but it involves her dumping files, contracts, books of account, cash journals, bills to pay, letters to write--- all bang in my lap and in an apartment where I have hardly enough room to be halfway comfortable without all that. In London I had a hell of a good secretary who cost me £70 an hour (five shillings) on a half day job. She had more brains in one finger than most girls in that line have in both legs.

Yours despondently,

CHANDLER, RAYMOND THORTON

MICKEY SPILLANE, AGATHA CHRISTE, GIRLFRIENDS,
HIS SECRETARY AND LIVING ALONE

(1888–1959) Author of crime stories and novels of immense stylistic influence upon modern crime fiction, especially in the style of the writing and the attitudes now characteristic of the genre. His protagonist Philip Marlowe is synonymous with “private detective,” along with Dashell Hammett’s “Sam Spade.”

A despondent Typed Letter Signed, on his blue personal printed address stationery, 4to, La Jolla, CA, “Sep” 7, 1956.

Mickey Spillane, Agatha Christie, girlfriends, his secretary and living alone are the topics Chandler writes about to fellow mystery writer William Gault. “Just a short snort to thank you very very much for the inscribed copy of Ring Around Rosa...I know that some people are paid for quote, because my agent once called me from New York and asked me if I should like to do some and make a little easy dough...As for Mickey Spillane, I have no opinion on any point because I never got beyond page 4 in any book of his I tried to read. The same, I might say, goes for Agatha Christie and several others of the Sacred Sisterhood of Ladylike English mystery writers. I am feeling rather disgusted with life at the moment. One of my girl friends just got herself married to a lunkhead whom I found quite repulsive, and I’m afraid the poor girl has made a mistake. She is a Texas girl, a mystery writer...I guess she is just damn well fed up with living alone. So am I. If there is anything in life I hate it is going out to dinner alone. I could cook it, but that would be worse...I feel like chucking the whole thing and going back to England and become a resident and pay their bloody taxes...Also my secretary has abandoned me for school teaching, a pretty sensible idea on her part...In London I had a hell of a good secretary...She had more brains in one finger than most girls in that line have in both legs...” He signs, “Yours despondently, Ray.” [Partially printed in Selected Letters 1981 and 2000 editions.]

William Campbell Gault (1910–95) was an American writer perhaps best remembered for his sports fiction but also known for his crime stories. Chandler refers to Gault’s crime novel, Ring Around Rosa (1955) which introduced Gault’s series private detective Brock ‘the Rock’ Callahan. Chandler also comments on the books of fellow crime story writer, Frank Morrison Spillane, known as Mickey Spillane (1918–2006) who created the popular detective, Mike Hammer. From The Maurice F. Neville Collection of Modern Literature.

DI PRIMA, DIANE [WILLIAM BURROUGHS]

BEAT POETRY, FLOATING BEAR COLLECTION

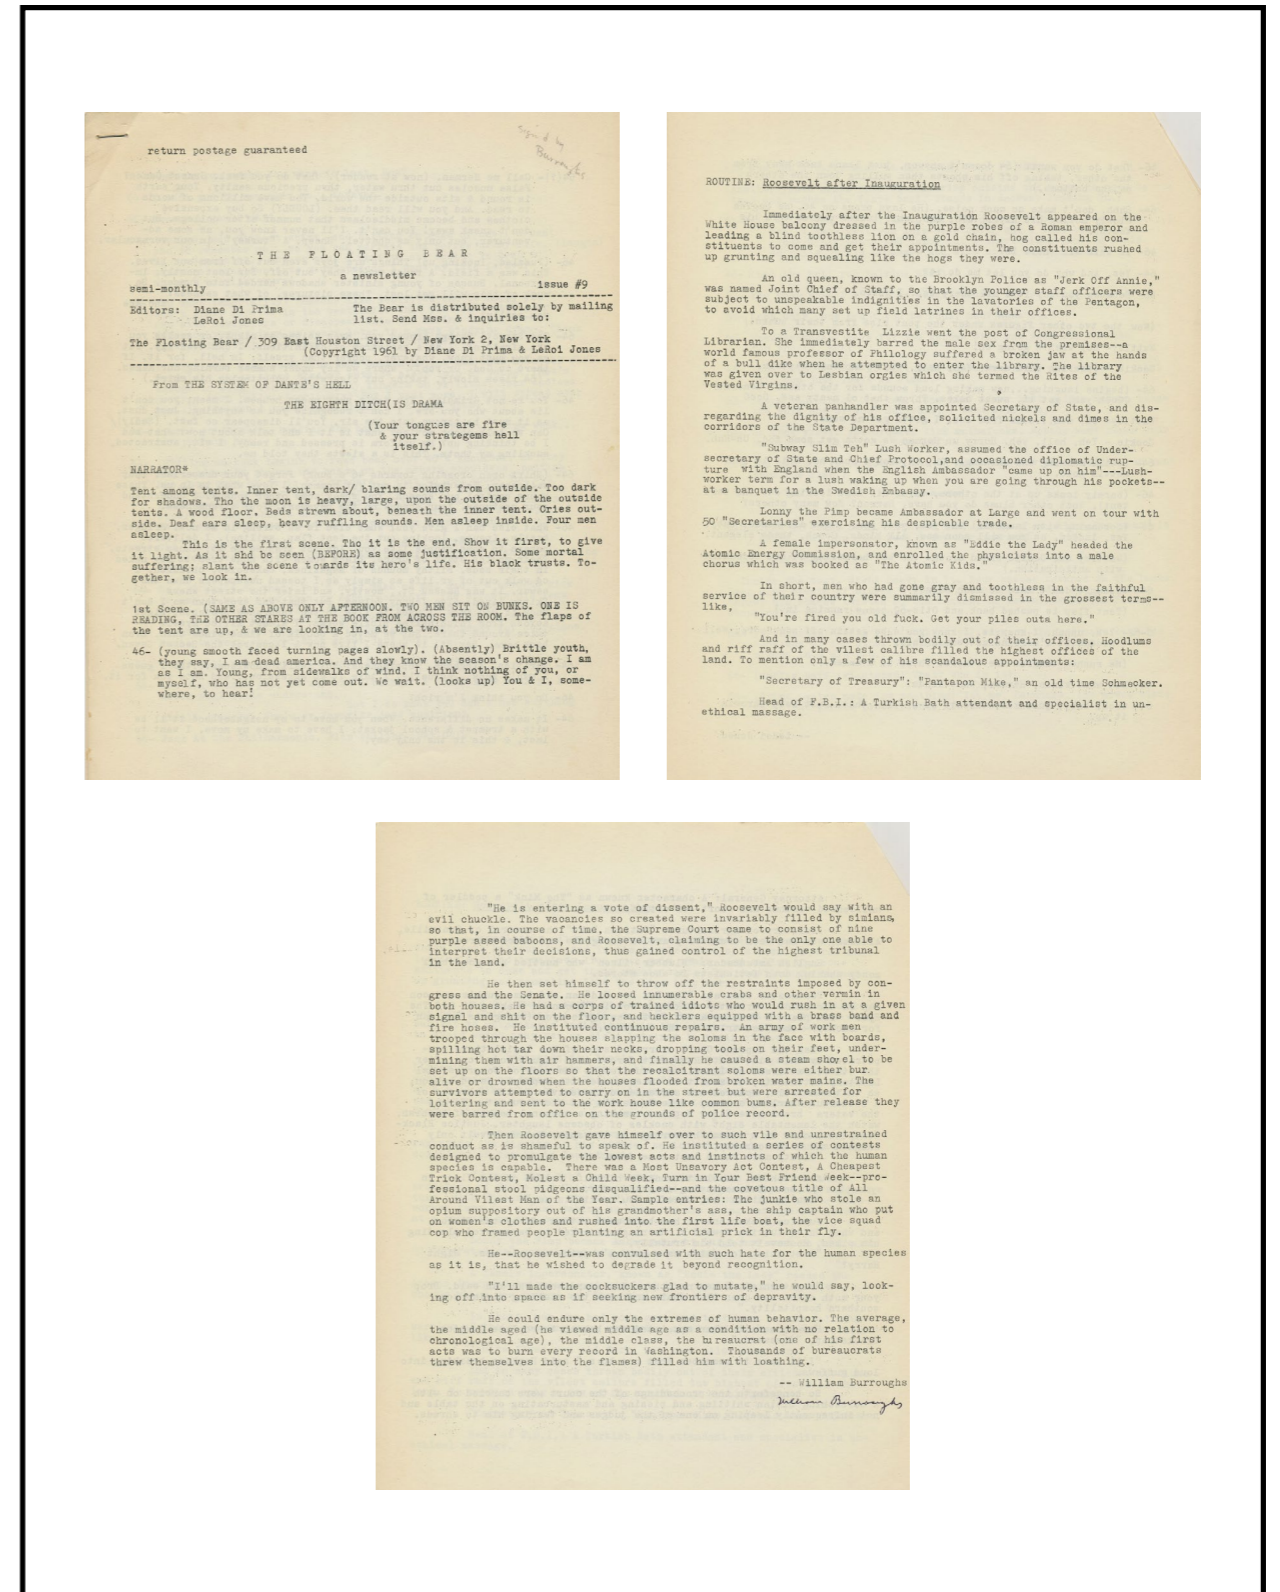

(b. 1934) American poet, part of the Beat movement; honored as Poet Laureate of San Francisco in 2009; awarded the National Poetry Association's Lifetime Service Award.

Floating Bear Collection of 19 separate issues includes #9 signed by William Burroughs. Issue #9 is considered the most famous of the run because it includes Burroughs' article, "Roosevelt after Inauguration." Two issues of #23 brings total number of issues in the collection to 20. Issue numbers with typed page of journal as cover: 3, 9, 10, 12, 13, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23 (2 copies). The following issues include illustrated covers: 28, 29, 30, 31, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37. Issue #34 includes a poem by Philip Lamantia and a story by Johannes Koenig. We include as separate sheets, the typed poem signed by Philip Lamantia on onion skin paper, and the typed article signed by Koenig. Each issue is comprised of copied typed pages of heavy stock paper, two-sided, stapled together.

In 1961, di Prima and Amiri Baraka (then LeRoi Jones) began a monthly poetry journal, Floating Bear, featuring Beat poetry including their own. Floating Bear continued with Di Prima as editor until 1969 when the publication ended, with a total run of 37 issues or 38 if Intrepid 20 is included. Baraka left in 1963. Condition: all pages in all issues in tact and in good to very good condition. A substantial collection of Di Prima's Beat journal.

RAINEY, GERTRUDE 'MA' (NEE GERTRUDE MALISSA NIX PRIDGETT)

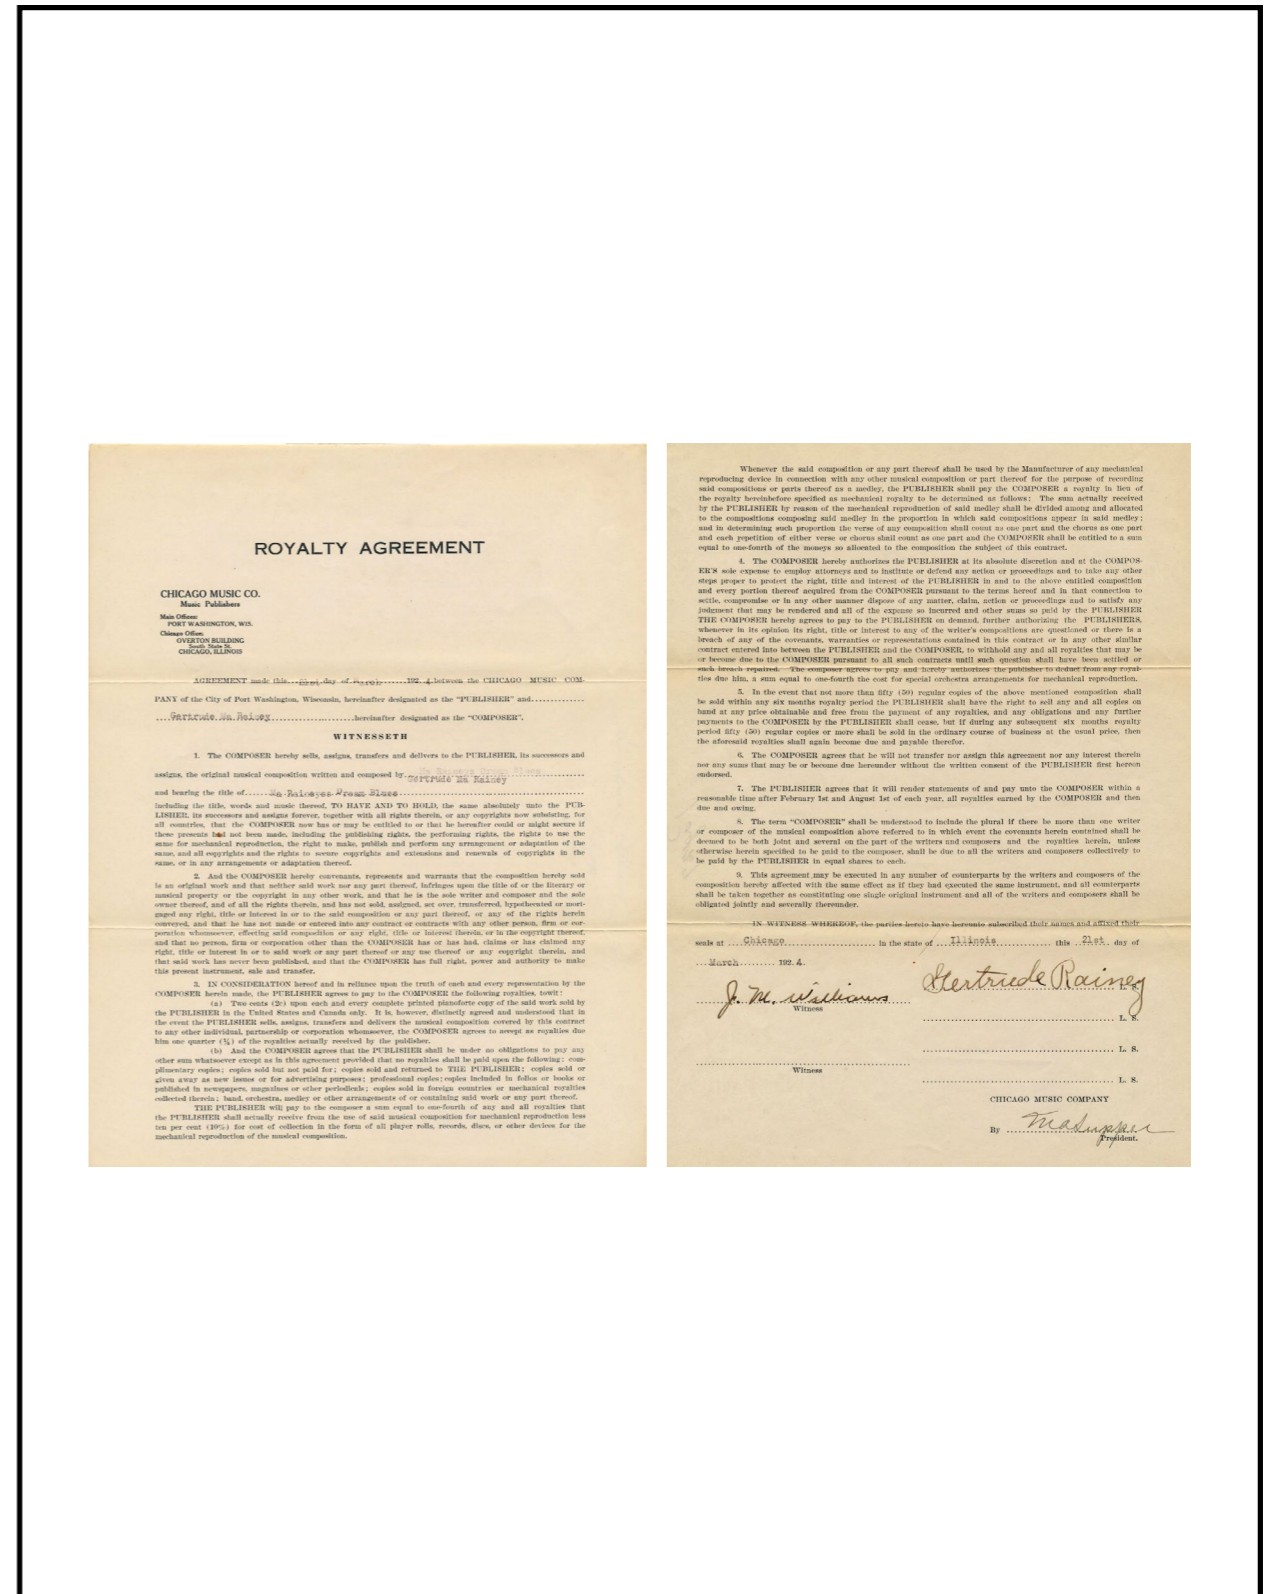

(1886–1939) Known as the “Mother of the Blues,” she is regarded as the first popular entertainer to incorporate authentic blues in her performance repertoire.

Document Signed, two pp, 4to, Chicago, March 21, 1924.

Our Document is a Royalty Agreement between the Chicago Music Publishing Company and Rainey for a song titled “Ma Raineys [sic] Dream Blues,” which she wrote and composed. Rainey agrees to sell, assign, transfer, deliver, “the original musical composition,” which she wrote. The agreement assigns monies to her for reprinting the music and “mechanical reproduction” of her composition. She signs on the lower portion of the second page in a large hand, “Gertrude Rainey.” In August of the year Rainey signed our agreement, she recorded the eight bar blues number “Shave ‘Em Dry” and, in the course of the same year, went on tour with her Wild Cats Jazz Band debuting at Chicago’s Grand Theater on State Street. Between 1923–28, when Rainey first signed a contract with Paramount Records, she recorded almost 100 records with some of the best contemporary musicians. Normal aging to pages, two horizontal folds on each page. Manuscript material of Rainey rarely becomes available.

RAUSCHENBERG, ROBERT

RAUSCHENBERG WRITES TO NOTED AMERICAN
PHOTOGRAPHER ARNOLD NEWMAN

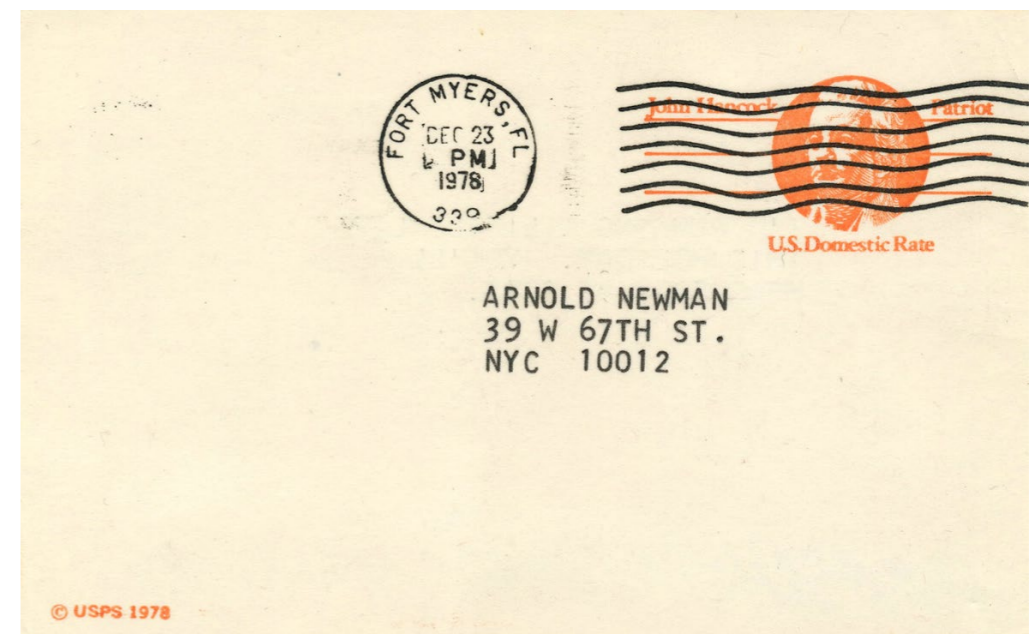

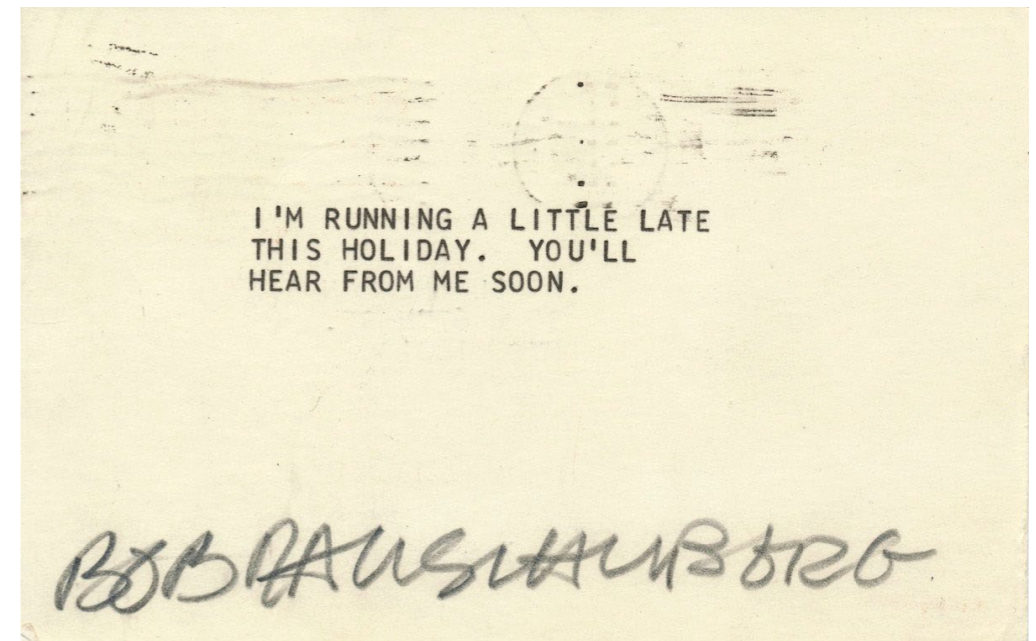

(1925–2008) American Artist who worked in a variety of media combining materials and best known for the paintings he called Combines, works that integrated aspects of painting and sculpture often including such unexpected objects. He also worked in photography, awarded the National Medal of Arts in 1993.

Typed Letter Signed, on postcard postmarked Fort Meyers, Dec. 23, 1978.

Rauschenberg writes to noted American photographer Arnold Newman indicating in all caps that he is, "RUNNING A LITTLE LATE THIS HOLIDAY. YOU'LL HEAR FROM ME SOON." The artist signs in all capital letters as well, "BOB RAUSCHENBERG." Arnold Newman, (1918–2006) was known for his portraits, identified as the "Father of Environmental Portraiture." Letters of Rauschenberg are rarely on the market. Our brief typed letter to noted photographer is exceptional. The postmark of Fort Meyers suggests that Rauschenberg wrote this letter from his home and studio on Captiva Island, Florida.

SCHUMANN, CLARA

(1819–96) German musician, one of the leading pianists of the Romantic era, as well as a composer, and wife of composer Robert Schumann.

Autograph Letter Signed, in German, small 8vo, n.p., n.d.

Schumann writes about the new owners of her house. “Please inform me...of the title and name of the people who bought my house in Lichtenthal; I do not know it exactly. We are well...” She signs in full, “Clara Schumann.” The letter is matted with a printed photograph, ready for framing.

Clara Schumann was the main breadwinner for her family through her concerts and teaching, and she organized concert tours. About her own talent as a composer she had written, “I once believed that I possessed creative talent, but I have given up this idea; a woman must not desire to compose—there has never yet been one able to do it. Should I expect to be the one?”
